Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.
Pacifists The pacifist conscientious objectors believed that all war was wrong. They believed that all violence was wrong and that negotiation was the preferable way of settling disputes.	Pacifists The pacifist conscientious objectors believed that all war was wrong. They believed that all violence was wrong and that negotiation was the preferable way of settling disputes.	Pacifists The pacifist conscientious objectors believed that all war was wrong. They believed that all violence was wrong and that negotiation was the preferable way of settling disputes.	Pacifists The pacifist conscientious objectors believed that all war was wrong. They believed that all violence was wrong and that negotiation was the preferable way of settling disputes.	Pacifists The pacifist conscientious objectors believed that all war was wrong. They believed that all violence was wrong and that negotiation was the preferable way of settling disputes.
Absolutists Absolutists were opposed to the conscription law and also to war. They believed that their civil liberty and the freedom of the individual should be upheld.	Absolutists Absolutists were opposed to the conscription law and also to war. They believed that their civil liberty and the freedom of the individual should be upheld.	Absolutists Absolutists were opposed to the conscription law and also to war. They believed that their civil liberty and the freedom of the individual should be upheld.	Absolutists Absolutists were opposed to the conscription law and also to war. They believed that their civil liberty and the freedom of the individual should be upheld.	Absolutists Absolutists were opposed to the conscription law and also to war. They believed that their civil liberty and the freedom of the individual should be upheld.
Alternativists Alternativists did not agree with the war however they were prepared to undertake civilian work.	Alternativists Alternativists did not agree with the war however they were prepared to undertake civilian work.	Alternativists Alternativists did not agree with the war however they were prepared to undertake civilian work.	Alternativists Alternativists did not agree with the war however they were prepared to undertake civilian work.	Alternativists Alternativists did not agree with the war however they were prepared to undertake civilian work.
Non—combatants Non-combatants were prepared to be conscripted but not to bear arms or to kill. They were usually given other tasks like stretcher bearers or medics.	Non—combatants Non-combatants were prepared to be conscripted but not to bear arms or to kill. They were usually given other tasks like stretcher bearers or medics.	Non—combatants Non-combatants were prepared to be conscripted but not to bear arms or to kill. They were usually given other tasks like stretcher bearers or medics.	Non—combatants Non-combatants were prepared to be conscripted but not to bear arms or to kill. They were usually given other tasks like stretcher bearers or medics.	Non—combatants Non-combatants were prepared to be conscripted but not to bear arms or to kill. They were usually given other tasks like stretcher bearers or medics.
Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.
Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.	Religious objector. Men who objected to war as it was against the beliefs in their religion. This was the largest group of objectors and mainly included Quakers and Jehovah Witnesses.